Unit 2- Write a short article (120–150 words) for the school magazine to raise awareness among young people about the challenges faced by refugees. Suggest practical ways that you and your community can help them access basic rights such as education, healthcare, and employment, and become successfully integrated into society. Consider what items or services could be donated, and what kind of social support systems could be offered.

Helping Refugees: Building a Stronger, Kinder Community

Every year, millions of refugees are forced to leave their homes due to war, persecution, or natural disasters. Sadly, many are denied access to basic human rights like education, healthcare, and employment. As young people, we can play an important role in helping them feel welcome and supported.

Our community can provide donations such as clothes, food, books, and school supplies. Volunteering time at local shelters or language centers can make a big difference. Schools can offer extra language classes and buddy systems to help refugee students adjust. Local clinics and hospitals can provide free or low-cost healthcare, while businesses can offer job training and work opportunities.

By treating refugees with kindness and respect, and supporting their needs, we help them rebuild their lives and create a more inclusive, compassionate society for all. What we give today shapes a better tomorrow.

Integration is a crucial process for refugees to rebuild their lives and contribute to their new society. It is a shared responsibility between the refugees and the local people to create a welcoming and inclusive environment. There are several integration practices that can help refugees to access their rights and fully participate in their new communities.

Firstly, language learning is essential for refugees to communicate with the local people and navigate the new society. Language classes, language exchange programs, and bilingual services can support refugees in learning the language of their host country.

Secondly, employment opportunities can provide refugees with financial stability and a sense of purpose. Programs that offer job training, vocational education, and employment support can help refugees to enter the workforce and achieve self-sufficiency.

As for expressing solidarity, local people can engage in various actions such as volunteering, donating, and advocating for refugees' rights. Volunteering at local refugee organizations, donating clothes and supplies, and advocating for policies that support refugees are some ways to show support and solidarity.

In conclusion, integration practices are crucial for refugees to access their rights and fully participate in their new communities. It is a shared responsibility between the refugees and the local people to create a welcoming and inclusive environment. By promoting integration practices and expressing solidarity, we can create a more just and compassionate society for all.

Unit 3- Biography

I greatly admire Malala Yousafzai, a Pakistani activist for female education and the youngest Nobel Prize laureate. Malala was only 11 years old when she began advocating for girls' education in her hometown of Swat Valley, where the Taliban had banned girls from attending school.

Despite facing numerous threats and attempts on her life, Malala continued to speak out, even after being shot in the head by a Taliban gunman in 2012. Since then, she has become a global symbol of courage and resilience in the face of adversity.

Through her Malala Fund, Malala has worked to promote girls' education around the world and has helped to finance schools and educational initiatives in countries such as Pakistan, Nigeria, and Syria. Malala's unwavering dedication to the cause of education for all inspires me, and I believe that she is a shining example of how one person can make a positive impact on the world.

Marie Curie (1867–1934) was a pioneering physicist and chemist, renowned for her groundbreaking research on radioactivity. Born in Poland, she moved to France to pursue her education and became the first woman to win a Nobel Prize and the only person to win Nobel Prizes in two different sciences (Physics in 1903 and Chemistry in 1911). Her discoveries laid the foundation for advancements in medical diagnostics and cancer treatment. Despite facing discrimination as a woman in science, Curie's dedication and brilliance propelled her to become one of the most influential scientists of all time. Her legacy continues to inspire generations of scientists, especially women, to pursue their passions and push the boundaries of knowledge.

Unit 5- Social media

Social media has become deeply integrated into modern youth culture, with most adolescents actively using various platforms. While it offers several benefits, it also raises concerns regarding its influence on young users' behavior, time management, and relationships. Write an essay/article (120 - 150 words) to express your views. Discuss the positive as well as negative aspects giving examples.

The Impact of Social Media on Today's Youth

In today's digital age, social media plays a significant role in shaping the lives of teenagers and tweens. On the positive side, it allows young people to connect with peers, share ideas, and explore diverse cultures. Platforms like Instagram and TikTok also foster creativity and self-expression, encouraging users to develop digital skills.

However, the negative effects cannot be ignored. Excessive use of social media can lead to reduced face-to-face interaction, harming real-life relationships. It may also contribute to anxiety, low self-esteem, and sleep issues, especially when teens compare themselves to unrealistic online portrayals. Furthermore, constant notifications and screen time affect time management and academic performance.

In conclusion, while social media offers valuable opportunities, its impact must be carefully monitored to ensure healthy development among young users.
