

Look Up by Gary Turk is a spoken word video that went viral for its powerful message about the impact of social media and smartphone addiction on real-life interactions and relationships. Here are my answers based on the video:

1. What do you use your mobile phone mostly for?
 - People use their mobile phones for various purposes, such as communication (calls, messaging, social media), entertainment (videos, music, games), productivity (emails, calendars, notes), and accessing information (news, maps, search engines).
2. What are some applications provided by modern mobile phones?
 - Modern smartphones offer applications for social media (Instagram, TikTok, Facebook), messaging (WhatsApp, Messenger), entertainment (YouTube, Netflix, Spotify), productivity (Google Docs, Zoom, Microsoft Teams), navigation (Google Maps, Waze), and many more.
3. Why do you think this person urges people to look up?
 - Gary Turk urges people to "look up" because he wants them to disconnect from their screens and engage with real-world interactions. He highlights how excessive phone use can lead to isolation, missed opportunities, and a lack of genuine human connections.

The video critiques how modern society is increasingly addicted to screens, leading to social isolation and missed opportunities. Some key themes include:

- Disconnection in a Connected World – Despite having technology that allows instant communication, people often feel lonelier than ever.
 - Lost Moments & Opportunities – The poem suggests that many beautiful experiences are missed because people are too absorbed in their devices.
 - The Illusion of Social Media – While social media presents a filtered version of life, it can never replace genuine face-to-face interactions.
4. What do you think this video is trying to raise awareness of?
 - The video raises awareness about the dangers of digital dependency and social media addiction. It encourages people to be more present in their surroundings, appreciate real-life moments, and build face-to-face relationships instead of being glued to their screens.
 5. The video plays a poem in rhyme. Has that played a role in the popularity of the video?
 - Yes, the poetic format and rhyming structure make the message more engaging, memorable, and emotionally impactful. The rhythm helps capture the audience's attention and makes the message easier to share and recall.
 6. What would have happened if the boy hadn't stopped the girl in the street?
 - According to the video, if the boy had been too distracted by his phone and hadn't stopped the girl, they would never have met, fallen in love, or built a life together. This highlights the idea that being present in real life can lead to meaningful experiences that would otherwise be missed.

"what if?"

The scene where the boy misses his chance to meet the girl (in the alternate version where he was on his phone) is a powerful storytelling technique. It leaves viewers reflecting on their own experiences—what have they possibly missed due to screen distraction?
